SALISBURY STATE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI

Guerrieri's Million Dollar Scholarship Fund

At a press conference with Governor William Donald Schaefer in Annapolis on February 27, Alan and Patti Guierreri and Dr. Thomas Bellavance announced a million dollar scholarship fund for SSU.

"We are extremely pleased by the generosity of the Guerrieri family," said Governor Schaefer. "It is exciting to see others recognize the quality of higher education offered at Salisbury State and the support this institution has drawn from the community."

"This is the most generous endowment for scholarships in the history of the University," said Bellavance. "It will allow us to provide considerably more academic scholarships to the brightest and best in every school of the University. Their gift is a clarion call to all private citizens and the corporate sector to recognize public institutions for their on-going commitment to excellence."

Alan Guerrieri is president and chief executive officer of Showell Farms, Inc. which last year processed over half a billion pounds of chicken.

"My wife and I feel that Salisbury State University is something to be proud of," said Guerrieri. "If (people) visited, I think they'd understand why we are giving this gift (to the University). We hope others will."

Patti Radcliffe Guerrieri, an alumna, met her husband while she was still a student at SSU.

"When my sister and I went to Salisbury, everything was in one building. Now the campus has 25 buildings," said Patti Guerrieri. "Despite the growth, I'm glad that Thom (Bellavance) wants to preserve the small college atmosphere."

The gift makes SSU the highest-endowed four-year comprehensive state University in Maryland. It was second in the nation in endowed gifts among public comprehensive universities in 1987-88.

The first Guerrieri scholarships are expected to be announced this fall.

Alumni Sponsor Dance Performance

On Friday, May 11, the Alumni Association will sponsor the opening night performance of "Yerma," a dance play based on a work by the Spanish poet, Federico Garcia Lorca.

Originally set in Spain, "Yerma" has been translated by choreographer, Kathy Martin, into the African-American genre using blues and gospel underscoring and design. It combines dance and drama to depict the story of a woman, representing all women, facing society.

Costumes are designed by Dana Simpson, nationally known artist and musician, who also is performing much of the solo recording. Sculptor and three-dimensional artist Dave Jones designed the set. These talents, together with the technical expertise of Tony Broadbent and costuming skills of Olga Mac Millan, will produce an exciting and invigorating performance.

Alumni are invited to the opening night reception in the Social Room. "Yerma" will also be performed on May 12 and 13.

Black Alumni Reunion

Over 100 participants joined in the combined Black Alumni Reunion and Black Family Conference—organized by Charlene Mills '78 and Lawanda Gordy '82 in conjunction with the Social Work Department—held March 16-18 at the Salisbury Sheraton Inn and SSU. The weekend's events included a dance, baseball game and Sunday brunch.

Glasnost for Breakfast

The first lecture in the Alumni Breakfast Series was held April 5.

Dr. Greg Cashman, professor in the Political Science Department, shared his expertise on Soviet domestic and foreign policies and their impact on the changes in Europe today.

"The University is a source of expertise on practically every subject," said Judy Pielemeier, executive director of the Alumni Association. "Future breakfasts will be held to keep alumni informed about what is happening in our rapidly changing world."

Contact the Alumni Office if there is a topic you would like covered in the series or a subject on which you would be prepared to give a lecture.

Phonathon

The seventh annual Phonathon is in full swing and it looks like it will meet this year's target of $125,000! Every Monday through Thursday evening until April 16, students, board members, alumni and staff are busy contacting over 8,000 SSU graduates. Student Lori Robinson (above) was on hand during a recent heat wave. Each gift, great or small, is deeply appreciated. Your donation will make SSU even better!

Letter from The Editor

Welcome to In Touch! It's been designed with you in mind.

As editor of the Scene, I've often heard from alumni who wanted to be kept more up-to-date with what was happening on campus and with their classmates. Salisbury State has changed so rapidly that each issue of the Scene was creaking at the seams, and we never had enough space to tell you everything we wanted to.

That's why In Touch has been created—a bi-monthly newsletter to let you know what's happening, what we're planning...and to bring back a few memories.

This is our first issue. We've done our best to give you a concise rundown on the things you might find interesting. If you need further information, simply give us a call on 543-6042. Keep us In Touch with what you're doing (the deadline for the June/July issue is May 8)—and let us know how you like it!

Editor

CHAPTER CHATTER

Over 7,000 alumni now live away from the Salisbury area, and many are active in chapter activities. Graduates relocating to the Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Dover or Annapolis areas find the move smoother when they can get together with other SSU alumni. The social events are always fun, and our memberships represent so many different professions, that mixing business with pleasure becomes an enjoyable habit! If you'd like help with setting up a chapter near you, call the Alumni Office at (301) 543-6042.

Annapolis

Pat Donahue '74—(301) 672-3992 or work (301) 731-3194

Over 30 graduates from the Annapolis Chapter enjoyed a menu which included filet mignon and baked Alaska flambé at a dinner meeting held at the Rustic Inn on February 21. Special guests included Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts and Dr. George Rubenson from The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

Baltimore

Dan Gladding '78—(301) 665-1323

About 50 alumni attended an informal meeting held at the Greene Turtle in Fells Point on January 16. Dr. Carol Williamson, dean of students, and Paul Zimmerman, admissions counselor, addressed the group. Judy Pielemeier spoke on the role of the Alumni Association, and Dan Gladding introduced the job-networking and assistance concept. Incidentally, the Greene Turtle is owned by Bill Packo, Steve Pappas and Tom Dickerson - all SSU alumni.

Future plans include a joint chapter moonlight cruise in June, the Orioles Bullpen Party on July 19 and a reception for new students and their families in August.

Dover

Richard Givens '75—(302) 734-3681 or work (302) 736-4231

A summer barbecue is on the coals. Watch your mail for details.

Washington, D.C.

Grace Lang '87—home (301) 595-2586

Alumni from the Washington, D.C., Baltimore and Annapolis areas had the chance to meet legislators at a reception arranged by the office of Senator Paul Sarbanes and hosted by the D.C. Chapter at the Capitol on February 22.

Travel

There's nothing like seeing new places with old friends and, if your vacation plans aren't signed and sealed, why not join one of the many exciting trips with the University of Maryland System travel program?

This year's offerings include cruises in the Caribbean, Alaska, Asia and Russia. You can go on an East African safari, follow the whales down the California coast to the Sea of Cortez or check family roots in Scotland and England. For those whose pleasures lie closer to home, mini-tours to Assateague, the Chesapeake and Baltimore, and a skiing trip to Wisp are all planned for the months ahead.

If you or your spouse are over 60, you are eligible to take any of the many Elderhostel programs offered throughout the U.S. and abroad. Salisbury State will be hosting six week-long courses this summer, including the popular Michener's Chesapeake. For excellent value and stimulating company, call the Alumni Office for details.

Epicureans

Bruce Hartley, Annie Hartley, Rich Barbieri, Tom Darden, Bob Jones, Sonny Riggin and Woody Ward brought back melodious memories to the classes '67-'71, at the SSU Function, Saturday night, April 7, in the Dining Hall. Danny Long, Tony Redman and Helen Collins were in charge.

Congressman Ben Cardin (pictured with Judy Pielemeier) took time out from a long-running session to attend the function, and aides Todd Skipper and Karen Calmoise, representing Congressman Roy Dyson and Senator Barbara Mikulski respectively, gave talks on current education legislation.

Early Bird Reunions

Here are the agriculturists of '40. Can you pick out Audrey Christopher and Edward Dougherty? If you'd like to see more of your fellow alumni, and you graduated in '30, '35, '40, '45 or '50, your Early Bird reunion will be held June 29 and 30. Watch your mail for details or contact your class representative:

'30—Marion Thompson Mathews (301) 498-7872
'35—Mary E. Nicholson 898-5423
'40—Ruth W. Timmons 632-0669
'45—Gladys Evans—(302) 239-2792
'50—Arlene Knowles 883-3269

School of Education and Professional Studies

Sharon Clark has been appointed director of field experiences. Clark is a clinical classroom teacher who taught science at Bennett Middle School. She has been active in organizing the Teacher Effectiveness Network between schools and the University and is enrolled in a doctoral program.

Dr. William Lide, physical education chair, has been appointed to the NCAA Council.

Dr. Keith Connors has been made a '90/'91 fellow of American Council on Education.

A multicultural conference featuring Dr. Asa Hilliard of Georgia State University is being held May 2-3.

The school has secured a contract for science education of at-risk-students from Eastern Shore schools.

The Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts

Dean Sharon Rubin is an active participant nationally on student involvement in community service. The work has taken her to James Madison University, Michigan State University, the University of Minnesota, Indiana University and the Johnson Foundation Wingspread Conference, where she has given workshops, presentations and evaluations. Her writings on the subject will be published in Combining Service and Learning, and Community Service as Values Education. Rubin is also teaching an honors course at SSU on students and community service.

School of Nursing and Health Sciences

The school is comfortably settled into its new, just-off-campus home in the Power Professional Building.

Four-year scholarships for residents of the Eastern Shore of Virginia have been established in honor of Margaret Johnson Elmore of Painter, VA.

The University's Nursing Honor Society was chartered as an official chapter of Sigma Theta Tau, International Society of Nursing on March 18. Over 100 nursing alumni participated in the ceremony.

"Health and the Elderly," a workshop co-sponsored by Sigma Theta Tau, will be held May 16. It is open to health professionals and the public.

The Richard A. Henson School Of Science and Technology

The Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, March 9, attracted 18 teams from 12 high schools who attempted to solve 18 computer programming problems. The winning team, from Bennett High School, was awarded $1,000 toward the purchase of computer equipment or software. The event was sponsored by an $8,000 grant from Delmarva Power.

Dr. Donald Cathcart, interim dean, presented a paper, "Algebraic and Geometric Techniques Useful in Computer Graphics," at the National Council of Teachers of Mathemetics meeting in Philadelphia.

Dr. David Rieck published an article on aspects of structural chemistry in the Journal of Chemical Education.

Dr. Robert Hedeen made a presentation on the control of Lyme disease at the Lower Shore Landscape Maintenance Workshop.

Campus Calendar

Many on-campus cultural, educational and social events are for you to share. Among other activities this term, we have enjoyed the SSU Theatre production of "Anything Goes"— so successful that an extra performance was added. We were moved by Lewis Hine's graphic photos of children working, before the labor laws he helped to bring about were enforced. We smiled at the quirkish metal sculpture of Henry Heller. We were mesmerized by Jordan Leondopolous's talk on how he edited "The Exorcist." Dr. Samuel Myers' lecture, "Public Policy and the Black Community," gave us food for thought...and—within the week—we'll be "Savoring the Symphony!" Don't think your relationship with SSU is limited to your donation at Phonathon time. We like seeing you here, and it's our way of saying "Thanks" to you and the community we live in! A weekly listing is published in the Advertiser and The Salisbury News and Advertiser and The Daily Times. Here are a few highlights:

Profile

Joe Bernard ('77), was back at his Alma Mater March 14, as executive-in-residence at the Perdue School of Business. Since graduating with a degree in business, Bernard has developed the Wye River line of Eastern Shore seafood specialities which grossed almost $2 million in '89 and earned him the title "Marketer of the Month" in January's issue of Food and Beverage Marketing. Well done, we'll think of you on our next trip to the supermarket!

Remember When...

Here are some reminiscences from three '40 alumni, Ruth Whetzel Timmons, Nancy Kline Taylor and Charley Elliott, who will all be at the Early Bird reunion in June. If they bring back memories for you, drop us a line, or call the Alumni Office at (301) 543-6042.

- Ruth Powell, whose jangling keys always gave warning of her approach in ample time for conduct in Social Room cubicles to appear completely decorous.
- Coca-Colas were five cents at the College Market.
- The day some of my friends(?) physically picked up my small Austin auto and set it in the main aisle in Holloway Hall.
- Hamilton Fox was required to speak in the lobby on "The Hole in the Donut."
- "What Happened on the Night of January 16?"
- Sharing my school dance date (an excellent waltzer) with "Miss Ruth," who was happy to find someone who could lead her in this smooth, old-fashioned dance.
- Those who failed to obey rate rules scrubbing the steps with a toothbrush.
- Harbinger of things to come - the student Peace Parade.

Florida Reunion

Goldy and Catharine Tyler, with their daughter, Catharine Tyler Gill, organized a reunion luncheon at the Radison Hotel in Orlando, FL, on March 15. Also present were the Chuck Fultons, the Gene Sterlings, Doris Caldwell Newell, Betty Carey Price and husband Robert, the Virgil Hickmans, Phoebe Nock Perry and husband Jim, and the Ed Doughertys who all enjoyed sharing memories, many of which were prompted by slides taken from yearbook photos.

Honor Roll Amendments

The winter issue of the Scene contained a list of over 2,000 alumni, parents, faculty, staff and friends who made donations to the Alumni Annual Campaign, July 1, 1988 through June 30, 1989. Every effort was made to ensure accuracy, but the following donors were omitted, misspelled or wrongly designated. Please accept our apologies, and notify the Alumni Office of any other inaccuracies.
